

Our onstream record is nearly perfect.
That really bothers Travis Payne.

Travis Payne, customer support and production planner at our facilities in La Porte, Texas, and his team of gas separation experts monitor systems around the clock to ensure continuous gas supply to their customers' operations.

True, with our global capacity of more than 1.5 billion cubic feet per day, we produce and recover more hydrogen than anyone – twice that of any other industrial gas supplier. And even with more than 1,000 operating plant years across the refining, petrochemical, specialty chemical and life science industries, our onstream record is next to perfect and the best in the business.

But in addition to all that we invest in new facilities, equipment and technology, it's the expertise of our people that makes our performance so impressive.

We understand the critical importance of reliable, safe hydrogen supply to your operation. And every day we work toward perfection.
